HEALTHY LIVING

FOR A HEALTHY LIVING ENVIRONMENT: OSMO'S SOLVENT-FREE PRODUCT RANGE

The desire to live healthier has become stronger nowadays. Finishes for wooden floors should be durable and easy-to-maintain as well as easy-to-apply and suitable for wood. At the same time, the demands for low-emission, healthy and natural products are ever increasing. Osmo can do both – and without solvents.

With their natural oil-and-wax-based wood finishes, Osmo has developed an excellent reputation with architects and woodworkers around the world over the last decades. Still today, the German company develops and produces all of its own finishing systems in Münster. Osmo Polyx®-Oil is a timeless classic: unrivalled for flooring and other high-wear wood surfaces. As always, it is approved for children's toys, resistant to saliva and perspiration, and safe for humans, animals and plants when dry.

With this product line for wooden flooring, Osmo have taken another step forward. The solvent-free wood finishes and maintenance products are specifically tailored to humans with particular needs. These products are the right choice for anyone who values a healthy living environment, but does not want to forgo high-quality workmanship and durability.

But also in terms of building codes, architects and woodworkers are on the safe side with VOC-free products from Osmo. Guidelines are more and more geared to specifically target VOC limits in wood structures. With solvent-free products from Osmo, architects and wood producers can anticipate and work towards stricter restrictions.
